Chatburn Circular Walk

About This Walk

Chatburn at the foot of Pendle takes its name from one of the most distinguished characters of Anglo-Saxon times, St Chad or St Ceadda. Chatburn itself occupies a beautiful position in a hollow between two ridges.

The village stands some 400 feet above sea-level, and there are excellent views around it. Smithies Bridge and Grindleton Bridge, both a mile from the village centre, link Lancashire with the old county of Yorkshire and the river scenery here is most attractive. There is a Roman Road alongside the village which was built over 2000 years ago.

Chatburn is a place of medieval origin, the derivation of its name being from Ceadd's Stream (Ings Beck). Its pleasantly grouped houses and cottages are mainly built of local limestone. The village has its own shops and inns, playing fields, school, church and chapel.

Walk Description

★ From the centre of Chatburn, take the Downham road and, on crossing the railway bridge, take the public footpath signed to the right past the village hall. On joining Victoria Avenue, bear left and walk to the end where you turn right onto a lane. On meeting the small stream, turn right and follow the well-marked path up to the A59. Taking great care, cross the bypass and head straight through a kissing gate on the well-trodden path towards the right hand side of the wood ahead.

you reach the open field bear slightly right to pass the end of another hedgerow ahead. Carry straight on in the same direction to pass along the right hand side of Languard Hall Wood and into Downham village via two more squeeze stiles.

across Swanside Beck. Retrace your steps from the stone stile and bear right across the field to cross the footbridge.

⑥ On crossing the wooden footbridge, bear left uphill and continue ahead across another stile to meet an old stone "outbarn". Pass to the left hand side of the barn and then re-cross the hedge by the gates and follow this hedge up to the bridge over the railway. Follow the well-defined path through a number of gates to return to Downham Road at the bypass bridge and back to Chatburn village.
